WHAT DOES A

YOUTH ASSOCIATION DO?

WHAT IS UMS?

- UMS (Young People with DLD) is an association for people aged 13 to 30 who have a developmental language disorder.
- A youth association is an organisation that brings together young people.
- UMS's goal is to bring together young people with developmental language disorders together to meet and socialise and to exercise a common voice in the public debate.

Together we can make ourselves heard.

- Through political influence we can change the public conception of Developmental Language Disorder and improve the lives of DLD sufferers.
- We are working to be heard in the mass media and social media in order to increase awareness about DLD.

Community spirit

- We believe in the importance of community spirit. UMS is an opportunity to make new friends. We arrange enjoyable activities where we get together and have fun.
- We decide which activities to choose. Activities include going bowling, going to the movies or meeting to talk about what life is like with DLD.

Board work

- In order to arrange events and get our views across, we need members to join the board of directors and plan the association's activities.
- Our aim is to have both a national board for the whole of Sweden and local boards in various places around the country.
